Religious Services

Tomorrow morning from 9:00 – 11:30 AM, religious services for many faiths will be held. Remember that attending a service is a requirement for the Duty to God segment. The closest service to us is the Protestant service at the NER stage. The Chaplains have a complete list of all services.

Knives
Folding chairs
Big backpacks

Stay safe

Drink plenty of water before and during mobilization and while you're at the arena. There will be water at the arena to refill your water bottles so you have enough for the show and the walk back to camp afterwards. We'll be dismissing everyone from the arena by rows; watch for the green wands to get back to the subcamp.

Medical Note: Treating minor issues

Every Scout here learned first aid to earn First Class, the minimum rank required to attend the Jamboree.

The medical staff encourages you to put those skills to use and treat minor issues in your site with your personal or troop first aid kit instead of coming to the medical tent.

You should feel comfortable treating these on your own:

- Minor scrapes and cuts—clean and bandage
- Bee stings—if no visible reaction, clean sting and put on a band aid

- If there's a rash or you have trouble breathing, come to the medical tent immediately
- If it later gets red, stop by during sick call
- Blisters—cut moleskin to cover the area.
  - Prevent blisters by cleaning your feet daily, wearing clean socks and not wearing flip flops or wet shoes to walk long distances.

Of course, we'll see anyone who comes to us, but we want you to be out exploring the Jamboree, not at the medical tent.

Merit Badge Midway

How many merit badges does the Boy Scouts of America offer? You can find out with a visit to the Merit Badge Midway.

You'll be able to learn about any merit badge that interests you and may find some that you didn't even know existed.

You can complete some, if not all, of the requirements and you don't need a blue card. Just make sure that you have your Jamboree ID; the requirements you complete will be sent to your council electronically.
